ABOUT US

Rocky Mountain
RAPTOR
Program
a second chance at freedom

Our Vision

RMRP envisions a world where humans achieve a harmonious balance with wildlife and the environment.

Our Mission

RMRP inspires the protection and conservation of raptors and the environment through excellence in rehabilitation, education, and research.

Our Goals

Rehabilitation Goal:

To provide the highest level of care to sick and injured raptors and prepare them for "A Second Chance at Freedom."

Education Goal:

Encourage adults and children to be stewards and heroes of wildlife and wild places.

Research Goal:

Increase knowledge of how to care for and protect wild raptors, while identifying and monitoring challenges to their environment.

Your Belief in Us Makes Us Stronger

Dear Friends of the Feathered,

As I reflect on the past year at the Rocky Mountain Raptor Program, I am filled with deep gratitude and admiration for you who make our mission possible, and also for our dedicated staff and volunteers, our resilient raptor patients, and our Education Ambassador raptors.

In 2024, we continued to advance our commitment to rehabilitating injured birds of prey, educating the public about raptor conservation, and conducting research that informs and inspires. Thanks to your support, we treated over three hundred raptors this year, and average a release rate of 75%, which is a testament to our rehabilitation team's dedication and skill. Every bird that soars again into Colorado's skies is a story of hope, healing, and the profound impact of our collective efforts.

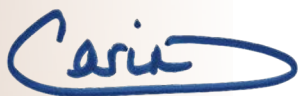

Education remains a cornerstone of our mission. Through community outreach, school visits, and special events, we reached more than 65,000 individuals this year through 262 days of programming delivered. We sparked curiosity and fostered a deeper respect for the natural world. Our Educational Ambassador raptors continued to captivate audiences of all ages, serving as living symbols of the wild beauty we strive to protect.

We also expanded our research initiatives, contributing valuable data on raptor health and challenges in the Rocky Mountain region. These efforts not only guide our rehabilitation practices but also aid in broader conservation efforts across the western United States.

The challenges facing wildlife continue to grow—from habitat loss to changing weather patterns and the continued increase of human-wildlife conflict—but so too does our resolve. In the year ahead, we will deepen our impact through planning our future facility, current facility improvements, expanded community partnerships, and enhanced volunteer opportunities in all areas of our organization. Your continued support will be critical to these efforts.

On behalf of everyone at the Rocky Mountain Raptor Program, thank you for your unwavering belief in our work. You are a vital part of our flight toward a future where raptors thrive in healthy ecosystems and every injured bird has A Second Chance at Freedom.

With gratitude and hope,

Carin Avila (she/her)
Executive Director

EDUCATION

Inspiring Future Stewards of the Natural World

In 2024, our environmental and conservation education initiatives reached tens of thousands, raising awareness about the critical importance of protecting raptors and preserving the natural world they—and we—depend on.

Through dynamic programs and community outreach, we work to illuminate the impact of human activities on wildlife and natural resources. By sharing the stories of the raptors in our care, we create personal connections that inspire individuals to make more sustainable choices, both now and for future generations.

Our education efforts are designed not only to inform but to empower. Each presentation, school program, and public event helps foster a deep understanding of environmental stewardship. By engaging people of all ages, we are planting the seeds for a more environmentally responsible society—one that values conservation as an essential part of daily life.

Most importantly, our programs aim to inspire the next generation of environmental champions. By nurturing curiosity, passion, and responsibility in young minds, we are helping to ensure that the raptors of tomorrow will soar through healthier skies over thriving landscapes.

At RMRP, we know that education builds the foundation for long-term conservation success. Together with the support of our community and partners, we are creating a future where raptors and the natural world are protected, celebrated, and cherished for generations to come.

2024 Program Reach

- 135 school programs presented.
- 7,981 students reached.
- 127 days of community outreach.
- 56,553 people were reached at outreach events.

278 total days of outreach.

64,838 total people experienced the majesty of raptors.

Above: Dozens of students excitedly interact with our educational programs. Our programs inspire audiences from kindergarten through doctoral students.

“Education and outreach are unquestionably important because they turn awareness into action! Raptors are powerful symbols of ecosystem health, and teaching about them inspires awe, but more importantly, it connects our community to the vital role these birds play in nature. When people understand raptors, they begin to see the value of protecting habitats, not just for the wildlife that lives in them, but for all of us.”

-Heather Schneider, Education & Outreach Director

Above & Right: A small but indispensable group of 20 hard-working Educational Ambassador raptors work tirelessly to provide inspiration for humans of all ages to be a part of the fight to preserve wildlife and wild places. Volunteer handlers provide medical and husbandry support every day of the year.

“I love the education programs, especially those presented to children. They are so important in encouraging them to respect nature, preserve the environment, and admire the raptors. Besides being fun, this outreach can be a pivotal moment of influence in these young minds.”

REHABILITATION

Healing Raptors

In a rapidly changing world, raptors face growing threats—from vehicle collisions and habitat loss to extreme weather and disease. When danger strikes, the Rocky Mountain Raptor Program—and you—are there to help.

With a skilled team of staff, volunteers, and veterinarians from Colorado State University's Avian, Exotic, and Zoological Medicine Service, we provide each raptor with expert, compassionate care.

Every bird's recovery is a reminder of our shared responsibility to protect these remarkable creatures and the environment we all depend on. Your support makes this life-saving work possible.

2024 Rehabilitation Statistics

75% of treatable raptors were released.

53 DAYS: Average length of stay of a rehabilitating raptor.

12,592 DAYS: The total number of rehabilitation bird care days in 2024. Every day a raptor is in our care, it counts as one bird care day.

Most Common Causes of Injury:

85-90% of cases fall in the first 4 categories. Cases are not mutually exclusive.

1. Trauma & fractures
2. Fell from nest
3. Vehicle collision
4. Disease
5. Extreme Hunger
6. Human Interference
7. Entanglement - Fencing, netting, twine, fishing line, etc.
8. Window strike
9. High-Voltage Trauma
10. Gunshot
11. Animal Attack (dog/cat)

Above: These two baby Swainson's Hawks lost their nests due to severe storms. Within a matter of months, they touched the skies again.

We monitored raptor diseases in 2024:

27 raptors tested positive for West Nile Virus (WNV).

8 raptors tested positive for Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza (HPAI).

Both are challenging diseases to treat, and HPAI is almost 100% fatal in raptors. When HPAI patients are in our facility, they must be treated with strict biosecurity concerns in mind to ensure other raptors in our care do not also catch the disease.

We are one of only three facilities in the US where an HPAI-positive raptor has recovered and returned to the wild.

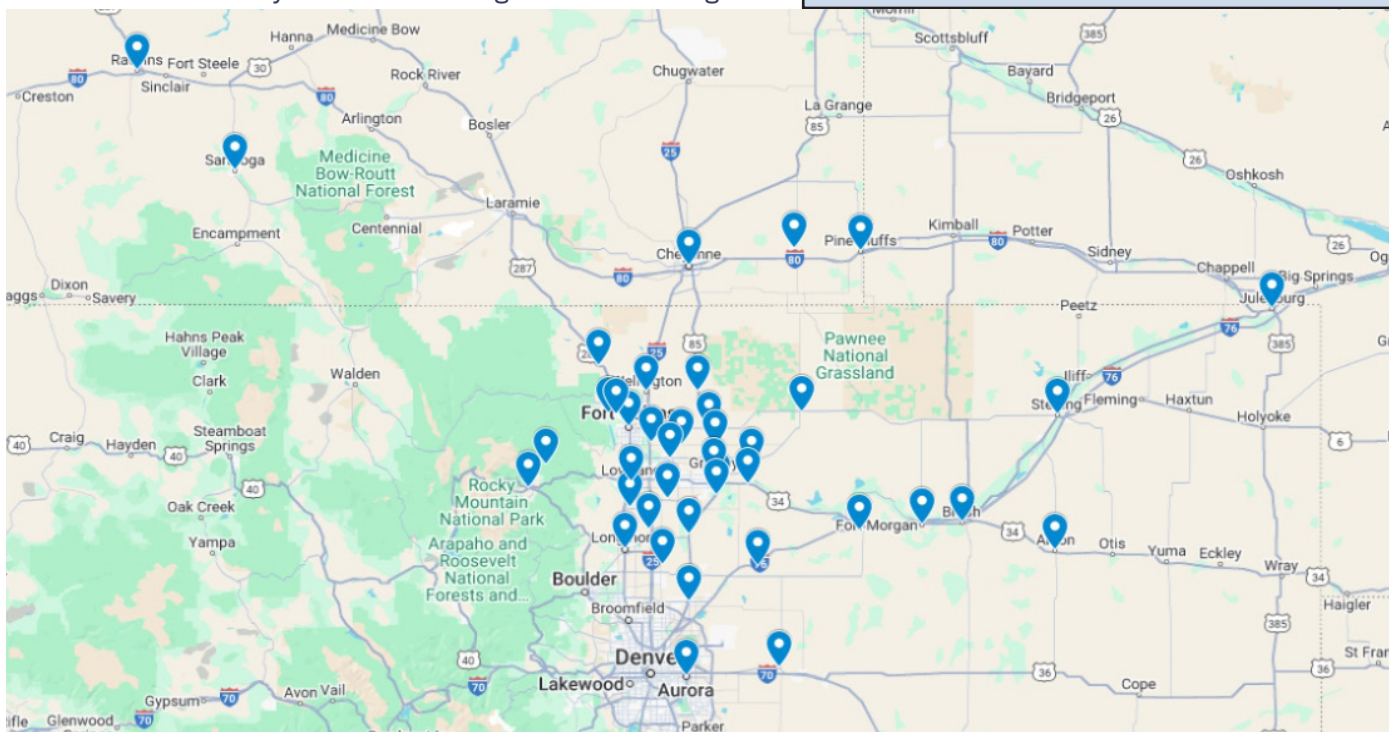

Cities Where Raptors Were Rescued:

Colorado:	Estes Park	LaPorte	Telluride
Akron	Evans	LaSalle	Timnath
Ault	Firestone	Livermore	Wellington
Aurora	Fort Collins	Longmont	Wiggins
Bellvue	Fort Morgan	Loveland	Windsor

Briggsdale	Greeley	Nunn	Casper
Brighton	Johnstown	Pierce	Cheyenne
Brush	Julesburg	Platteville	Pine Bluffs
Drake	Keenesburg	Severance	Rawlins
Eaton	Kersey	Sterling	Saratoga

Admissions by Species:

Species	Total
Great-horned Owls	78
Red-tailed Hawks	55
Swainson's Hawks	46
Cooper's Hawks	46
American Kestrels	23
Turkey Vulture	18
Barn Owl	11

Total Admissions: 311

Above: RMRP rescues raptors in Wyoming and Colorado, covering thousands of miles, and we field hundreds of calls for raptors outside of our service area, and refer calls about non-raptors to dozens of other rehabilitation organizations.

RESEARCH

Knowledge for the Future

Raptors in the wild are at risk due to habitat loss and human interference. We conduct research to help us better understand how to protect them and their habitats, as well as monitor disease transmission. Our research also informs decisions that make the world safer for them. Investing in raptor research is crucial for their survival and the health of raptors and our ecosystems.

2024 Research Projects

- West Nile Virus surveillance in raptors (RMRP, CSU Ebel, Bosco-Lauth)
- Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza testing and detection in local raptor populations (RMRP)
- Diversity of Leucocytozoon (a blood parasite) (Collins, Rhodes University, Memphis TN)
- Osprey Parasite Study focusing on trematode parasite infections, particularly flukes (parasitic flatworms) within the genus Scaphanocephalus, which are osprey specialists and travel with the birds during migration (Johnson Lab, University of CO)
- PacifiCorp Wind Project (PacifiCorp, USGS, RMRP) PacifiCorp will study bird safety near wind turbines and evaluate the effects of painting one wind turbine blade black to reduce risks to birds flying near wind projects. Before the study, PacifiCorp must understand the impact of scavengers on any carcass removal below the wind turbines, so bird casualty counts are as accurate as possible. Carcasses from the RMRP are being sent to the wind turbine site in WY to help with this preliminary scavenger study.
- Relationship of WNV and Feather Abnormalities (Bower et al, University of Wyoming)
- Three-year assessment of HPAI virus infection, seroprevalence, and clinical outcomes in raptors (Nemeth et al, University of Georgia)
- Wing measurements to determine the dimensions of utility poles to prevent electrocution (RMRP)
- Survey of lead levels in raptors of Northern Colorado and Wyoming (RMRP)

SPONSORS & PARTNERS

31st Annual Gala, a Great Success!!

We're over the moon to have raised over $130,000 at the 2024 Gala! Thank you for your support and participation in this event as an item donor, sponsor, pledge supporter, silent auction bidder, or one-time event donor. There is no "one-way" to support RMRP, and we're so grateful to everyone who made a bid, gave a donation, or sponsored the Gala. Our mission is stronger because of you!!

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Our hospital never closes, and each injured raptor requires an average of 53 days of specialized medical care before release. Your support of our rehabilitation efforts allows us to provide healing care for hundreds of raptors each year and release an average of 75% of those with treatable injuries.

Meanwhile, our world needs conservation & environmental education more than ever, and your support helps us provide 260+ days of education each year to thousands of children and adults who want to learn more about how to save our planet.

Donate now to drive our rehabilitation and education programs. You'll be saving raptors and saving our planet!

"It's the heart and commitment of the team at RMRP that inspires me to give and support the organization. Seeing raptors flying free is a marvelous sight."
